

Recalculating ●●● scrappy, feisty, indie(ish). Heart-on-sleeve but not sentimental, self-aware but not self-serious, and almost always grammatically correct. Two-thirds are brothers from Astoria, Queens. The other third stays for dinner when possible.

Since forming in 2017 Recalculating has honed its edgy, energetic sound at clubs across Queens, Brooklyn, and Manhattan. Recalculating's songs are designed to get to the point and hook fast. The new album expands on the densely packed, lyrically focused intensity of their earlier recordings while harnessing the chaotic spirit of the band's live performances. Enjoy Recalculating wherever you stream music.

DISCOGRAPHY

All Talk (2020)

"Here Is My New Emo Song" (2020)

No Banter (2018)

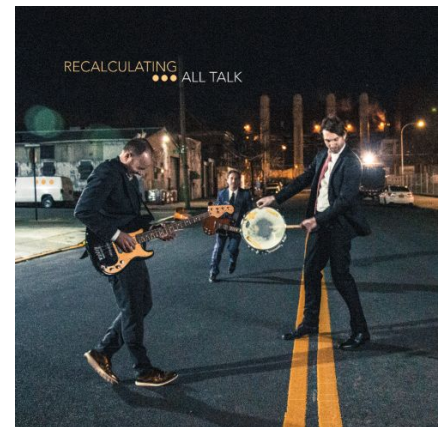

"I Wanna Write A Christmas Song" (2018)

At The Wolfhound (2018)

11.19.17 (2017)

Live photo courtesy Patrick Merino/IG @innycpat
Album photo/design and running photo courtesy Sebastian Montoya/www.noufotonet

ALL TALK ●●●

1. Heroin Part 2
2. Voices
3. Signal Problems
4. Shell Game
5. Dead Man's Clothes
6. That's When I Began My Solo Career
7. Good Night
8. Anthem
9. Not Counting On Sheep
10. I Need Your Love
11. Here Is My New Emo Song
12. Common Road Song

GO-TO TRACKS

"Heroin Part 2" —

In the scheme of things there are greater and lesser drug songs

"Good Night" —

A good night, cab drive alive, undenied, undressed in the light

"Dead Man's Clothes" —

All we are are things on stoops, windbreakers in yellows and blues

●●● All tracks are radio-friendly